Free Dementia Training

Brilliant

Please join us at this free one-day training with families and caregivers and specialists from many fields to learn about dementia. You never know where or when inspiration might hit you. This training is like nothing you have ever seen before. DAIL staff had the pleasure of attending a forum presented by Teepa Snow and it was so powerful that we wanted to share it with everyone. Think about it. How many trainings can claim this kind of reaction from a roomful of experienced professionals? DAIL and the Institute for Aging believes in this training so much we are offering the experience for free.

Teepa Snow, MS, OTR/L, FAOTA is a dementia expert for healthcare professionals and families. As a certified Occupational Therapist, Teepa has a unique medical perspective on how the brain controls the body and our behaviors. At this free training, you will see Teepa change in and out of character as a typical person with Alzheimer, in order to demonstrate common issues and problems that will help family and care providers. You will learn new ways of thinking that will empower improved outcomes to their highest potential.

Teepa is an advocate for those living with dementia. She has made it her mission to help family and professional caregivers a better understand how it feels to have dementia so they too can be better caregivers. To learn more about what you may experience (and I guarantee, this is not so much a training as it is an event that will inspire you) please search Teepa's website: <http://www.teepasnow.com/>
